² "James Josiah, Sea Captain" was listed as living in Philadelphia in 1785 at 407 Water Street. Macpherson's Directory for the City and Suburbs of Philadelphia (1785), 72.

³ "George Bryan, a Judge of the Supreme Court" lived at 437 Vine Street in Philadelphia in 1785. Prior to becoming a Justice on the state Supreme Court, Bryan had been a member of the state legislature and a leader of its Supreme Executive Council. His leadership was crucial to the passage of the 1780 Gradual Abolition Act. While on the Court, Bryan often sided with the cause of liberty and the aggrieved slave. Macpherson's Directory for the City and Suburbs of Philadelphia (1785), 16.

⁴ In 1785, Thomas McKean, Chief Justice of the state Supreme Court, lived at 522 Third Street in Philadelphia. Macpherson's Directory for the City and Suburbs of Philadelphia (1785), 86.

⁵ Edward Burd was the Prothonotary of the state Supreme Court. In 1785, he lived at 414 Third Street in Philadelphia. Macpherson's Directory for the City and Suburbs of Philadelphia (1785), 17.
