

Dora Kelly Lewis Letters

- Dora Kelly Lewis was a member of the National Women's Party, known for its "militant" tactics in the fight for women's right to vote.
- In July 1917, Lewis and others were arrested for displaying a banner outside the White House which pointed out President Wilson's hypocrisy in fighting for democracy in WWI, when it was not fulfilled in the U.S.
- Lewis' exchanges with her mother and daughter reveal more about her role in the movement for women's suffrage.
