

Native American- European Contact in Colonial Times ^[1]

Native American-European Contact is a cross-curricular lesson plan that explores the nature of the first encounters between Native Americans and Europeans in colonial Pennsylvania. Drawing on the concept of worldview, students learn to think critically about the cultural differences between Europeans and Native Americans, and how those differences shaped interaction and potential misunderstandings between the groups as they negotiated trade and diplomatic relationships.

Links

[1] <https://hsp.org/education/unit-plans/native-american-european-contact-in-colonial-times>