A brief history of Riverview Beach Park

Pennsville, NJ
1845 - The land at Riverview Beach Park was originally a farm with a tavern and a ferry. It was leased to Elisha Wheaton for one year for $250.00. Food and drinks were served to travelers in the house.

1851 - It was moved into the building called the Silver Grove Hotel. (Later called Acton's Grill) The hotel was named for the sixteen silver maple trees between it and the river. Behind the hotel and extending to Front Street, was the Silver Grove picnic ground. The excursion boat "Delaware" brought people daily to the grove from Philadelphia.
1875 - Taking the ferry from Philadelphia to the grove took 4 hours. The steamer "Major Reybold" also brought people to the grove as it made its trip from Philadelphia to Salem.

1889 - Farmers began holding their picnics at the Park. A merry-go-round was brought in just for that day. It was small and moved by man-power only.
1909 - The "Silver Grove" changed its name to "Riverview Hotel"
W.D. Acton inherited the Riverview Hotel from his grandfather, Jacob Acton. He enlarged the Park to include swings, movies, picnic tables, and a dance hall. The steamer Queen Anne, a steel hull sidewheeler, replaced the Adelaide and was later replaced by the Wilson Line. The Queen Anne brought Philadelphians to Batten's Beach in Pennsville.
1917-A "Dentzel" merry-go-round was purchased.

1918-Alvis W. Wallace opened a novelty shop at the Park.

1922-William D. Acton purchased the Baker farm from Mrs. Hannah Baker Batten. Boats began daily excursions to the Park. On Decoration Day of 1922, the City of Camden, City of Wilmington, City of Chester and the City of Philadelphia made their first cruise down the river to Riverview Beach Park.
