Abstract

Hayes Manor was founded as the Hayes Mechanics Home by George Hayes (1815-1857) and Ferdinand J. Dreer (1812-1902). Along with Dundas T. Pratt as executor, these men created a home of “honorable retirement” for tradesmen and skilled mechanics. The home was chartered in 1858, and the charter was ratified in 1861. In 1967, the organization changed its name to the Hayes Home for Men. In 1978, there occurred one final name change, to that of Hayes Manor, when the home began accepting women and couples. Hayes Manor continues to operate as a retirement home at its Belmont Avenue residence of over one hundred and twenty years.

The records of Hayes Manor document its history from before its inception in 1858 to the early 1990s. Among the materials are board reports and minutes, administrative correspondence, resident applications, estate records, financial books and papers, and numerous pamphlets, booklets, flyers, clippings, and photographs.

Background note

George Hayes, a jeweler, was born in Newark, New Jersey, in 1815. In 1847 he moved to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where he resided until his death in 1857. Hayes desired that his estate would someday become the grounds for a retirement home for disabled and aged workers, and he appointed his brother Jabez Hayes and friend Lewis Wells to carry out his wishes. Hayes and Ferdinand J. Dreer, a local goldsmith and collector, formed the jewelry-making business of Dreer and Hayes. As they were craftsmen themselves, these two shared sympathy for aged workers and mechanics, so much so that they sought to form a retirement home for such men.

When Hayes died in 1857, he left $45,000 from his estate “for the purpose of founding and supporting an institution to furnish a retreat and home for disabled or aged and infirm and deserving American mechanics.” The Hayes Mechanics Home for Aged, Infirm and Deserving American Mechanics was chartered on June 21, 1858, and the charter was ratified on March 16, 1861. The home’s constitution and by-laws established a corporation of no less than fifty Philadelphia residents, at least twenty-five men and twenty-five women. Named to the board of managers in charge of the corporation were Ferdinand J. Dreer, Lewis E. Wells, Samuel Sears, James D. Anderson, and Dundas T.

Pratt. The land for the home on Belmont Avenue in Philadelphia was purchased by Dreer in 1858 and subsequently deeded to the incorporators in 1866 for one dollar.

It is unclear exactly the type of home Hayes envisioned; however, the incorporators felt the initial bequest of $45,000 was not enough to finance a proper home. Hence, they invested the principle and income from Hayes' estate until 1884 when, with additional bequests and a gift from Dreer, the sum had doubled to over $90,000. Construction of the home began in 1885 and the home officially opened on May 12, 1886. At this time there were only fifteen residents, but the home quickly filled to the capacity of thirty residents. The campus contained three buildings, the Hayes Building, the Dreer Cottage, and the Reed workshop. In 1894 the Reed Building was erected to provide additional accommodations. In 1896 and 1897, in honor of several of his family members, Dreer funded the construction of a chapel, a solarium, and spacious corridors connecting the many buildings. An infirmary was added in 1906; and in 1923, the home received a bequest from resident Harrison C. Rea and subsequently added the Harrison C. Rea Annex for Aged Mechanics. By 1936, the number of residents at the home had grown to seventy.

The home's operations remained relatively unchanged throughout the first half of the twentieth century. To be considered for admission, each prospective resident had to have at least ten years work experience as a skilled mechanic, be an American citizen or naturalized for 25 years, and pass a physical. Preference was given to those living in Philadelphia and new Pennsylvania residents. Once a resident was admitted, his pension was paid to the home and his property was turned over to the home.

In 1967, in an effort to expand the population of residents, the home changed its name to the Hayes Home for Men to reflect that it no longer only took in aged American mechanics. In 1978, under the administration of Lia M. Skillern, the home began accepting women and couples, and underwent a final name change to that of Hayes Manor. The home celebrated its centennial in 1986 and continues to serve the needs of Philadelphia's and Pennsylvania's older residents.

Scope & content

The records of Hayes Manor span from 1827 to 1994, with the bulk of the material dating from the 1870s to the 1980s. The items from before the home's founding are mostly estate papers from those who bequeathed funds to the home. The collection primarily consists of board reports and minutes; administrative correspondence; resident applications; financial books and papers; and numerous pamphlets, booklets, flyers clippings, and photographs. Those researching the history of retirement homes in Philadelphia should find this collection quite useful. As well, the resident register and applications are significant genealogical resources.

The collection was found to be in very rough chronological order, with a few sections, such as resident applications, being arranged alphabetically. This order has been maintained. All photographs, however, have been placed into a separate series.

The collection is arranged into four series, the first of which (Administrative) is further divided into four subseries. The first subseries (Correspondence) consists of incoming and outgoing letters that pertain to the home's daily operations. They include inquiries from prospective residents or their family members, letters between board members, updates sent to residents' families, and details regarding various business transactions (such as food and supply orders). There is also one volume in this subseries: a letterpress book dating from 1910 to 1916. The second subseries (History) contains a variety of records that shed light on the home's history and place in Philadelphia as a once unique institution. Among the materials are anniversary booklets; papers pertaining to the Bala Golf Club, which bought land from the home in the 1940s; by-laws; clippings; inventories; name change documents; and building renovation papers. The third subseries (Minutes) consists solely of board minutes (either loose or in volumes) dating from 1858 to 1965. In the final subseries (Residents), researchers will find alphabetically arranged admission applications from 1910 to 1949, as well as a myriad of other documents such as estate records, wills, marriage certificates, discharge papers, and immigration and naturalization papers.

The second series (Financial) presents researchers with an overview of the home's finances from the 1860s to the 1960s, though a few items date to the 1980s. In addition to scattered bills, receipts, general statements, and expense/asset reports, this series also contains annual reports, a small amount of financial correspondence, stocks and bonds, insurance, and mortgage papers. This series also contains several volumes, most of which are cash books.

The third series (Images and artifacts) contains numerous photographs dating from about 1900 to the early 1990s of residents, staff, and the home's buildings and property. There is also a box of artifacts, mostly old tools, that were found in the collection.

Series descriptions

Series 1. Administrative, 1827-1984 (Boxes 1-7, Vols. 1-28)

a. Correspondence, 1879-1982, n.d..

At four folders, this small subseries contains a random mix of letters sent to various Hayes Manor board members, particularly Mr. E. W. Crittenden (past treasurer), Thomas Harrison (past secretary and treasurer), and Carroll W. Williams and John Callhoun (past presidents). Overall, the letters roughly date from 1879 to 1982 and consist of general inquiries regarding admission and residency requirements; financial data and construction estimates; and discussions of home necessities such as food and coal. There are also a few letters from residents expressing complaints or praise; letters from residents' families, and miscellaneous notes and unused postcards. Additionally, there is one volume in this subseries: a letterpress book dating from 1910 to 1916. Almost all the letters bear the signature of E. W. Crittenden. In addition to letters on general administrative affairs, there are approval letters to new residents, letters concerning board appointments and activities, and discussions on the daily operations and needs of the home.

b. History, 1859-1991.

This subseries contains material that documents over 130 years of Hayes Manor's history through a variety of administrative records, such as lists of committee members; real estate and land papers; correspondence with other organizations; programs, booklets, flyers, and invitations from several of the home's special events and activities; bills and receipts; and clippings. Despite the many different types of records in this subseries, none are terribly comprehensive; most folders contain few papers, and those papers generally cover very discrete time periods.

c. Minutes, 1858-1965.

This subseries consists solely of twenty-three minute books and a few folders of loose minutes from the Board of Managers and the corporators. The minutes date from the home's founding in 1858 to 1965. Any loose papers from the volumes have been foldered and filed chronologically in Boxes 3 or 4.

d. Residents, 1827-1984

This substantive subseries contains a variety of resident records that date from the mid 1800s to the 1980s, including applications, estate papers, and residents' personal papers. Like the History subseries, this subseries contains a wide variety of scattered records. But regardless of the lack of depth, the records that do exist shed light on the types of men the home accepted during the first half of the twentieth century. In Boxes 5 and 6, there are fifty-one application files and two folders of combined applications covering a time span of about forty years. Residents of the home were primarily from Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Some of them immigrated into the country, and thus the subseries contains a few immigration and naturalization records and vital records from foreign countries. There are several folders of personal papers from residents, which consist of assorted correspondence, legal records, insurance documents, and certificates. Please note that there are several German language documents among the papers of Frederick Arnold (Box 4, Folder 6). Additionally, there are a few military discharge papers; estate papers of Ferdinand Dreer, Edward T. Dobbins, John Smith, and others; insurance records; and miscellaneous deeds, mortgages, and other legal papers.

Series 2. Financial, 1875-1962 (Boxes 8-10, Vols. 29-47, 1 FF)

Aside from cashbook, daybooks, a ledger, and a building fund account book, this series is comprised of bills, receipts, and invoices; bank statements; insurance records; mortgage and real estate records; and reports of the Hayes' House Committee, which was responsible for general upkeep. This subseries also contains copies of the home's annual reports from 1906, 1907, and almost consecutively from 1921 to 1962.

Series 3. Images and artifacts, ca. 1900-1994 (Boxes 11-13, Vol. 48)

In this series are two boxes of assorted photographs of the home and its grounds, residents, and staff dating from about 1900 to the early 1990s, however the vast majority of them date from the 1970s and 1980s. Photographs from the early 1900s are rather austere and depict either the home's buildings or groups of men both inside and on the ground of the home. Later photographs candidly show staff and residents enjoying various events such as fundraisers and holidays. Box 11 Folder 2 contains prints of portraits, which include images of Ferdinand J. Dreer and his wife, as well as George Hayes. Also in this series is a box of artifacts that include blacksmith tools, stamps, coins, a safety key, a tree plate, and an etched plate. The tools were found among the collection and, according to accompanying paperwork, were donated to the Hayes Manor by Charles T. Cole for his grandfather Charles Benson Cole, who apparently worked as a blacksmith during the late nineteenth century. The connection between the Coles and the home remains unclear, but it is possible the elder Cole was a resident of the home sometime in the early part of the twentieth century.
