Abstract

The National Carl Schurz Association, Inc. (NCSA) was originally established in 1930 as the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation (CSMF), named in honor of the ambassador, senator, and Secretary of the Interior on the centenary of his birth. The founders were several German professors and teachers, including Ferdinand Thun, Gustav Oberlaender, Henry Janssen, and Hanns Gram, who each wished to promote and improve the teaching of German language and culture, and to foster friendship between the United States and German-speaking countries. Shortly after the Foundation was established, Gustav Oberlaender founded the Oberlaender Trust for the purpose of sponsoring visits by American scholars to German-speaking countries for the purposes of study and research. The trust provided a circulating film library, sponsored lectures and exhibits, and distributed American books to German libraries. Beginning in 1934 the CSMF and the Oberlaender Trust together published a quarterly newspaper, The American-German Review, which shifted to bi-monthly publication in 1938. This paper primarily focused on German culture and arts, with an additional amount of material in each edition pertaining to the projects and successes of the CSMF and Oberlaender Trust. The Oberlaender Trust went out of existence in 1953.

In 1962, the CSMF opened to general membership and changed its name to the National Carl Schurz Association, Inc. The association focused on providing and stimulating interest in German studies, facilitating occasional student and teacher exchange, fostering international education, and providing audio-visual language teaching aids. The NCSA continued the publication of the American-German Review.

Beginning in 1964 the NCSA worked closely with the American Association of Teachers of German (AATG), Inc., sharing headquarter space, personnel, and expenses. The AATG had been established in 1926 for the enhancement of German teaching at schools and universities. In 1968 the AATG and the NCSA established an umbrella organization - the American Council on German Studies (ACGS), Inc. with the mission of raising funds, implementing policies, and prioritizing programs.

Also in 1968, the NCSA alone established the National Federation of Students of German (NFSG) division, which promoted German language and culture through clubs and regional chapters at various junior highs, high schools, and colleges across the United States. The NFSG also sponsored summer study abroad programs in Germany.

After the NFSG was founded, publication of the American-German Review was halted and the newspaper was folded into a monthly publication, Rundschau [Review], whose distribution was limited primarily to the NFSG membership.

In 1972, the NCSA, the AATG, and the ACGS founded Educational Services International, (ESI) Inc., which then developed a large collection of German books, conducting book sales and operating as a travel agency.

In the mid-1970s, an increasingly contentious relationship developed among the partners, due to competitive bidding for funding. A state of tension and increasing lack of cooperation over a period of several years ultimately resulted in litigation. It appears that the NCSA, as well as the ACGS and ESI, have not survived these difficulties, although the AATG remains in existence as an independent organization as of 2004.

The collection consists of materials that belong to CSMF, the Oberlaender Trust, NCSA, AATG, ACGS, and ESI, with the prevalence of the materials stemming from the NCSA. The majority of the records from each organization are correspondence and financial documents. Other records include organizational charts; bylaws; agreements between partners; convention and annual meeting minutes and reports; committee reports; bicentennial exhibit inventories and catalogs; bicentennial contests essays; membership and employment records; materials that illustrate the programs implemented and provided, and publications. Also present are some of Carl Schurz's personal documents from unknown sources, including his speeches, certificates, correspondence, memorials, and family genealogy. The collection is completed by scrapbooks, photographs, negatives, slides, and artifacts belonging to each organization.

Background note

The Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation

The initial idea for a German language promotion foundation emerged in June of 1928 at Wyomissing, Pennsylvania. In 1929, with the approaching centenary of the birth of Carl Schurz, who, having immigrated to the United States in 1852, became an ambassador, a senator, and eventually Secretary of the Interior, it seemed nothing could serve as a more appropriate memorial to this great citizen of two continents than a foundation dedicated to the promotion of good relations between the land of his birth and the land of his adoption. By the end of 1930, after an intensive national fund-raising campaign under the direction of industrialist Ferdinand Thun, the idea came to fruition and the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation, Inc. (CSMF) was founded in New York. It was begun by Ferdinand Thun (d. 1949), Gustav Oberlaender, Henry Janssen, Hanns Gram, and others as an organization to foster German-American friendship and cultural understanding. The leader of the foundation was Wilbur K. Thomas, former Executive Secretary of the American Friends Service Committee. The initial group of directors and committee members of 1930 included diplomats — Jacob Gould Schurman and Alanson B. Houghton, educators — Stephen Duggan and Ernst Jockers, and bankers — James Speyer and Paul M. Warburg.

The Oberlaender Trust

Shortly after the foundation was set up, Gustav Oberlaender established the Oberlaender Trust, which was designed to sponsor visits by American scholars to German-speaking countries for study and research purposes. The trust was independent of the foundation, but functioned within its framework, and Gustav Oberlaender himself sat on both boards.

Until the middle of the Great Depression, thanks to many wealthy donors, the CSMF was able to give monies to various organizations promoting German-American relations. It began a circulating film library, sponsored lectures and exhibits, and distributed American books to German libraries. Four Goethe films were purchased in connection with the Goethe Centennial, and the foundation also received one hundred fifty sets of Goethe's works as a gift from the Freies Deutsches Hochstift in Frankfurt on Main to be distributed as prizes to American college students. The trust also funded one hundred and fifty German etchings, lithographs, and block prints that traveled across the country over a period of eight years, accompanied by a lecturer. The Oberlaender Trust organized an exhibition of original German painting covering the period from the fifteenth to the nineteenth centuries that opened in Philadelphia in 1936, and showed in six museums in the eastern and mid-western United States. In addition, a series of special German-American projects were undertaken in the fields of social work, medicine, city planning, journalism, adult education, public health, agriculture, chemistry, forestry, and other fields.

Both organizations sought a means to publicize their many activities. In 1934, the first edition of a new publication, American-German Review, appeared. The editorial board included Wilbur K. Thomas, Helen Appleton Read, Harry W. Pfund, Hans Gramm, and Walther Thomas.

The American-German Review offered rich discussion of German literary history, cinema, theater, sculpture, graphic arts, forestry, public health, recreation, biography, crafts, folklore, and education. Each issue included material devoted to the Foundation and Oberlaender Trust. In 1938, the Review developed from a quarterly into a bi-monthly publication. Under the changing circumstances of the war years, it moved its attention from German culture abroad to the history of the German element in the United States, filling its pages with diaries, biographical sketches, and articles on the immigration, settlement, folk customs, arts and crafts, reminiscences, theatre, music, industry, and science of German Americans. From 1944 to 1946, Howard W. Elkinton edited the American German Review. This publication continued mainly under the editorship of Alice Finckh, who joined the staff in 1949 and served until about 1968.

Despite a serious diminution of funds by the late 1930s, the CSMF signed a twenty-year lease with the Department of the Interior to rent the Old Customs House in Philadelphia (the Second Bank of the United States), now part of Independence National Historical Park and where they remained until 1964. One feature of this arrangement that appealed particularly to the Department of Interior was the intent of the foundation to memorialize Carl Schurz, who had served as Secretary of the Interior in the cabinet of Rutherford B. Hayes (1877-1881).

The coming of World War II necessitated adjustments of CSMF's and the Oberlaender Trust's programs. As early as 1935, both the Foundation and the Trust began to help German refugee scholars, artists, and writers establish themselves in the United States. During the war years, the Trust became involved with the Landis Valley Museum in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, which housed a large collection of materials designed to illustrate the technological development of the arts and crafts among the Pennsylvania "Dutch." When the Trust was finally dissolved in 1953, the museum and its collections were given to the state.

In 1939, the foundation established the American-German Institute as a nation-wide clearinghouse to provide information as to the nature and location of German resources in the United States. They developed a small library of books, pamphlets, theater programs, manuscripts, newspapers, and periodicals. The Institute developed a Union Catalogue of Americana Germanica — a huge card index, which included the titles of all books published in German in the United States. This index proved invaluable for the study of German Americans and American history in general.

The war took another toll on CSMF's financial support, particularly due to the fact that the federal government had withdrawn tax exemption status from all German-American organizations. Nevertheless, under leaders like George McAneny (d. 1953), Wilbur Thomas (d. 1953) and Howard Elkinton (d. 1955) and later, George Hanstein (retired 1961), its fiscal health gradually recovered somewhat.

The National Carl Schurz Association

In June of 1962, the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation officially changed its name to the National Carl Schurz Association, Inc. (NCSA). This move was partly in response to the changed character of the organization during the 1950s, when the CSMF shifted from an independent philanthropic organization to a membership association, with a new emphasis on providing educational services and research opportunities in German language studies, primarily to its members (which numbered about 9,000 in 1962).

Hans Werner Deeken, who first appeared as an executive associate in the fall of 1961, becoming executive director after Hanstein's retirement at the end of that year, largely spearheaded the name change. Deeken remained as executive director of NCSA until June 1977.

The American Association of Teachers of German

In 1968, Deeken also became head of the American Association of Teachers of German, Inc. (AATG), which was a separate organization founded in 1926 for the enhancement of German teaching at the high school and university levels. Since many of their programs and missions seemed to be so compatible, the NCSA and the AATG formed the NCSA-AATG Service Center in 1964, and in 1973 signed an agreement to share NCSA headquarters space, now at 320 and 339 Walnut Street, in Philadelphia. The two organizations also pledged to share personnel, some expenses, and of course, several programs.

The American Council on German Studies and the Educational Service International

Also in 1968, NCSA and AATG jointly founded the American Council on German Studies, Inc. (ACGS), with plans for joint control over the organization, and with Deeken acting as its secretary. The ACGS was established to propose policies and suggest priorities in programs of an academic or educational character and oversee the execution of these programs through properly qualified agencies. Its principal activity was to raise funds for the two founding organizations. These funds principally took the form of grants supplied by Stiftung Volkswagenwerk, the West German government, and the German state of North Rhine-Westphalia. The two organizations also set up an Educational Service International, Inc. (ESI) in 1972, with Hans Deeken as the chief executive officer. First on an experimental and later on a permanent base, the ESI developed a large collection of German-related books, films and the like, which were available to the joint membership. Later, the ESI also acted as a sales agency for foreign textbooks, and assisted in the travel field arranging transportation for ACGS, NCSA, and AATG programs.

The National Federation of Students of German

Again in 1968, the NCSA established the National Federation of Students of German (NFSG) as a division. Even at the time of the NCSA name change of 1962, nearly half of its membership were comprised of high school and university students. Through clubs, regional chapters and the like at various junior highs, high schools, and colleges, German language and culture were promoted among the American student population. The NFSG also sponsored a program for students to study in Germany for the summer. After the NFSG was founded, the NCSA decided to discontinue publishing its bi-monthly American-German Review and fold it into a monthly publication called Rundschau [Review], which was distributed mostly among the NFSG membership. Rundschau reported on the cultural, political and social activities throughout Europe as seen from an American point of view.

During the 1960s and throughout part of the 1970s, the NCSA was funded in part by the foreign office of the West German government, whose donations were partially responsible for the organization's ability to engage in the expansion of activities described above. The American Council on German Studies had primarily been set up to receive these funds, which it then disbursed to NCSA and AATG.

Unfortunately, the monies from the German government were often very slow in arriving, which exacerbated a growing tension between the NCSA and the AATG regarding the general disbursement of all funds. By 1977, the controversy had reached a head, especially since in September of that year the German government decided to withdraw funding for both organizations. The result was devastating to NCSA, which had to sell almost all of its assets to meet its debts. In addition, the AATG stopped paying bills for rent and rather suddenly moved from the joint headquarters on Walnut Street. The NCSA subsequently was forced to move, and by 1978 the two organizations were mired in various legal suits against each other. While the AATG reconfirmed its existence in a tentative settlement in 1981, the NCSA never really recovered from these setbacks. Most of the NCSA office files ended up with Alice Finckh, who had been with the organization since 1948. As of 2003, the American Association of Teachers of German was still in existence, with approximately 6,000 members.

Scope & content

This large and extremely complex collection of the National Carl Schurz Association records appears to be complete as well. The core of the collection consists of correspondence and financial materials, made more significant because these documents appear to have been presented in their entirety, even for the rather turbulent last few years of the association. Thus, the researcher can obtain a real picture of how the organization operated, particularly during the difficult years, and what led to its dismemberment.

This collection has been arranged with the records of the central organization first, then its affiliate partner, the American Association of Teachers of German, and finally, the entities created by this partnership. Reference material, scrapbooks and audio-visual materials, spanning most of the years of the association's existence, have been placed at the end. Photographs, negatives, slides, and artifacts complete the collection. The arrangement of records in most of the series is alphabetical, and then chronological within that arrangement.

Series 1A and 1B are not only the largest parts of the collection, but form its heart. Series 1A, concerning the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation and its satellite, the Oberlaender Trust, has a fine mix of correspondence, financial data, historical documents, publications, correspondence, and some minutes. Other files here are annual reports, bylaws and certificates of incorporation; radio broadcast transcripts, exhibit materials, and documents relating to the foundation headquarters at the Old Customs House. The Oberlaender Trust papers, Series 1A, Group 2, also include materials about the Landis Valley Museum.

Series 1B, Group 1, dealing with the National Carl Schurz Association (NCSA) office files, continues the story. Again, attention must be drawn to the correspondence, which is voluminous and fairly complete. Also, a researcher should keep in mind that the general office files include some part of the correspondence related to ACGS and AATG. There is also a plethora of financial materials here, set forth in a variety of ledgers, computer printouts, and other documents. A considerable amount of financial information can be found in the correspondence section for the years from 1977 to 1978. This provides the researcher with an even clearer picture of what caused the steady decline of the organization's finances towards the end of its active life.

The NCSA sponsored a number of activities during the national bicentennial, including at least one exhibit, and possibly two ("Span 200" was an exhibit and a publishing venture that appear to be connected to the bicentennial). There is also a large amount of information about the association's other exhibits, programs, and publications, as well as some personnel materials, a fairly complete section on the change of corporate name, and new incorporation materials. There is less in the way of minutes, which are sparse throughout the whole collection, annual reports, agreements, and contracts. Finally, in light of the ever-increasing complexity of the entire enterprise, the researcher may find the folder of organizational charts helpful.

As stated in the background note of this guide, the National Federation of Students of German (NFSG) was established as a division by the NCSA in 1968, partly because by then so much of the NCSA membership was composed of students. The papers in Series 1B, Group 2, concentrate solely on NFSG matters. Thus, there is considerable information on a student essay contest during the national bicentennial, some material about student clubs and conventions, and a great deal about the publication, Rundschan, which replaced the American-German Review, and the bulk of whose readership came from the NFSG. Both journals are now defunct.

The American Association of Teachers of German, Inc. (AATG) was founded in 1926 mostly by university professors interested in improving German language education at both the university and high school level. In 1928 it started publishing German Quarterly, which continues publication as of 2003.

As previously noted, Hans Werner Deeken, head of the NCSA, became head of the AATG in 1968, and Series 2 contains the NCSA-AATG affiliation records. Like Series 1, it abounds in correspondence, financial data, and information about various programs and projects. From the mid-1960s, for example, the two organizations launched their Teaching Aid Project (TAP), which developed pedagogical materials for American teachers of German, and provided travel and study opportunities in Germany. In about 1970, the AATG developed a program for American secondary teachers to teach English in the high schools of North Rhine-Westphalia, Germany. Both of these projects are well documented here.

In addition to these materials, there is a sizeable amount of documentation about AATG employees, and but very few minutes and little, other than what is in the financial records, about its German Quarterly publication.

Founded in 1968 by the NCSA and AATG, the American Council on German Studies, Inc. (ACGS) was designed primarily to raise monies for its two progenitors. ACGS was headed by Deeken. In the relatively small Series, 3 A, devoted exclusively to ACGS, one can find a number of documents, such as the organization's certificate of incorporation, bylaws, and minutes. There is a substantial amount of financial records here as well.

In Series 3B are the papers from Educational Services International, which was set up in 1972 by NCSA and AATG to house and later sell German-related books and textbooks, and to assist in any aspect of international travel. The vast majority of the records in this subseries are financial, dealing primarily with sales and data of the ESI marketing and travel divisions. However, a researcher can also find articles of incorporation, some correspondence and a few minutes.

Series 4, which is fairly large, contains a variety of printed and illustrated research and reference materials, probably used for both publication and exhibit background. There is a significant amount of Fraktur in this collection as well, which may have been used for illustrations in the various publications.

Series 5 consists of nine scrapbooks and some loose pages, which contain handwritten and typed correspondence, newspaper clippings, and photographs. These materials are arranged in chronological order from the founding of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation in 1930, well into the first years of the National Carl Schurz Association (from 1962 to 1968). This arrangement, therefore, provides the researcher with a good glimpse of unbroken, “official” organizational history, from start almost to finish.

Series 6 holds several audiocassettes and tapes, and filmstrips, most of which are undated.

Series 7 contains a considerable number of photographs, negatives, and slides, arranged in three subseries in a manner as similar as possible to the records. Therefore, Series 7A Group 1 relates to Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation, Oberlaender Trust, followed by the National Carl Schurz Association with its constituencies, their history, buildings, offices, events, programs, and publications. The vast majority of photographs in this subseries were collected and perhaps used in publications, mostly the American-German Review. Other photographs prepared for the national bicentennial celebration comprise the bulk of this subseries. The second grouping of Series 7A contains photographs of other organizations, and the third group includes historical and biographical photos, reflecting mostly Carl Schurz’s life history. Slides in Series 7B partly duplicate photographs’ contents, including, for instance, the Old Custom House building and offices, bicentennial catalog files, and again Carl Schurz’s life history. A few lantern slides depict Schurz’s life in pictures and cartoons. Series 7C consists of negatives, mostly unidentified and undated. For the most part, negatives remain with their photographs in Series 7A.

A few artifacts round out the collection. They mostly include medals given to the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation in recognition of its activities, plaques, and a few miscellaneous items, such as flags, a coin, keys, and other medals and medallions.

Series description

Series 1. General historical and office materials, 1709, 1784-1788, 1817-1995, n.d. (Boxes 1-111, 194-213, FF #1-6).

A. Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation (CSMF), 1709, 1784-1788, 1817-1983, n.d.

Group 1. General office, 1709, 1784-1788, 1817-1983, n.d.

This section contains the early history of the organization, and has a large and complete run of correspondence from before the founding of the CSMF to its incorporation into the National Carl Schurz Association. It is also rich in financial data, with a full set of audits from 1931-62 and an interesting section on its tax exemption status. Moreover, one can find information about its exhibits and publications, including American-German Review and Current Germany, both of which seems to have been published between 1953 and 1955.

Present in this subseries are a number of historical documents, including autographs, and some materials from and about Carl Schurz himself. Since 1954, the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation took long-range responsibility for the care of the Carl Schurz' grave at the Sleepy Hollow Cemetery in Tarrytown, New York, where he was buried in 1906. There are letters from CSMF to the superintendent of grounds concerning the condition of the grave and the CSMF's members' pilgrimage to the cemetery to commemorate the 125th anniversary of Carl Schurz's birth.

A fair amount of correspondence about the Old Customs House is also to be found in this subseries. There is a letter from the United States Department of the Interior telling about CSMF contributions in the initial rehabilitation, maintenance, and preservation of the building, in exchange for occupancy privileges (Box 12:7). However, after eighteen years of occupancy the agreement was terminated so as to allow the National Park Service to use the building.

There is information in this subseries that the CSMF was chosen by the US National Commission for UNESCO to discuss and formulate a program entitled "National Interest and Foreign Languages." There are many materials on the Independence National Historical Park Project, 1950-1952, in which CSMF took part. Also there is information about Theodore Heuss' visit to Philadelphia in 1958, when the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation presented a plaque to this president of the Federal Republic of Germany – the Carl Schurz Medal, in recognition of his services in promoting cultural relations between the United States and Germany. (Box 12:15-16). In addition, this very complete section has bylaws, certificates of incorporation, newsletters, radio broadcast scripts and – unusual for this collection – a full complement of minutes, from 1930 to 1962.

Group 2. Oberlaender Trust files, 1928-1978, n.d.

Set up by Gustav Oberlaender in 1931, this trust was independent of CSMF but was designed to enrich its services by sponsoring study and research visits of American scholars to German-speaking countries. This group of materials covers the life span of the trust, and includes its deed of gift to CSMF and subsequent transfer of assets in 1953, as well as some minutes and scrapbooks. There are financial documents, mostly to do with grant proposals, and correspondence with the Office of Alien Property. There is also a full set of audits.

In 1956, the CSMF published the volume "The Oberlaender Trust, 1931-1953" by Hanns Gramm, who served the trust throughout its life in an executive capacity. The trust was involved with the Landis Valley Museum in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, which housed a large collection of Pennsylvania "Dutch" objects. There are some records of this affiliation in this section, including articles of incorporation and bylaws, correspondence, financial data and a good run of minutes.

B. National Carl Schurz Association (NCSA) office files, 1953-1995, n.d.

Group 1. General office files, 1953-1995, n.d.

The heart of this collection is its correspondence. The correspondence of Alice Finckh, who donated the collection to the Balch Institute in 1989, is particularly interesting, as it details the tumultuous last years of the NCSA. This section also abounds in financial data: accounts payable, audits for almost every year, general ledgers, and income and expense spread sheets, payroll and tax information, budgets, wills, insurance materials and so forth. It contains, as well, much material about the NCSA's various exhibits, programs, and publications, especially the correspondence of contributors. There is also a fair amount of documentation about the change of corporate name and purpose in 1962, and a little about the move of the organization's headquarters to Walnut Street. There is a short article about NCSA museum activities in 1967, and its exhibits, particularly of Schurziana, displayed or stored elsewhere in the building. The article also mentions exhibits dealing with the two general themes, "Washington and His German Generals," and "The German Contribution in Ideas and Ideals" (Box 67:6). Unfortunately, however, there are very few annual reports or minutes in this section.

Group 2. National Federation of Students of German (NFSG), 1967-1978, n.d.

The bulk of this section concerns the publication of Rundschan, which replaced and expanded upon the old American-German Review. There is a great deal of correspondence from subscribers and contributors alike, some information about articles and a few copies of various issues. The vast majority of the records are, again, financial, and many relate to subscription renewals and membership. Finally, there is some material about the bicentennial essay contest the NFSG sponsored, its student clubs, and conventions.

Series 2. American Association of Teachers of German (AATG), 1938-1981, n.d. (Boxes 112-141, 214-215, FF #6)

As noted separately in this guide, the AATG was established before the NCSA, although Hans Werner Deeken, head of the latter, became executive secretary for the AATG in 1968. In 1973, Deeken hired Robert Govier as executive assistant, and Govier replaced Deeken as executive secretary in 1977. The two organizations shared their headquarters on Walnut Street, and the AATG paid rent to the NCSA for their space. In addition, having set up several entities jointly, each staff worked with these entities and kept records of time and expenditures spent on them.

Again, the correspondence section of this series, and especially the correspondence to and from Govier, is undoubtedly the meat of the series. Also the researcher would be well advised to consult correspondence in Series 1B, Group 1 for related AATG materials. Again, there is a goodly amount of financial information including a reasonable run of audits from 1970 to 1977. There is also considerable material about two programs: the Teaching Aid Project (TAP) for future teachers of German started by NCSA in mid-1960s and then continued by AATG, and in 1970, the NRW project, which placed US German teachers in high schools of North Rhine-Westphalia for one or two years to teach English.

The Symposium Project, "Investigation of the National Potential for the Advancement of the Teaching of German in the US," was sponsored in 1967 by the United States Office of Education and undertaken as a research project by the NCSA for development of a systematic approach to German language studies.

Finally, along with some employment data, there are constitutions, bylaws, a certificate of incorporation, and a small selection of minutes.

Series 3. American Council on German Studies (ACGS) and Educational Services International (ESI), 1958-1978, n.d. (Boxes 142-156, 214-218, FF #9)

A. American Council on German Studies (ACGS), 1963-1978, n.d.

The ACGS was established by the NCSA and the AATG primarily to raise funds for the two organizations and to handle the monies coming in to both from the German Foreign Office. Deeken was also head of this entity.

This small subseries has a good mix of information in it: agreements between the two organizations, bylaws and materials from its board of directors, including minutes. There is not much correspondence here, but for more correspondence related to this organization a researcher should refer to Series 1B, Group 1, General Office Files (Boxes 62-66). A considerable amount of financial information is available, including financial correspondence and budgets from 1968-78.

B. Educational Services International (ESI), 1958-1978, n.d.

Another entity set up in 1972 by NCSA and AATG was the Educational Services International, the status of which was under discussion from its establishment. The preponderance of this subseries is financial material, with an emphasis on sales, marketing, and tax information. There is also some correspondence, as well as agreements and contracts, articles of incorporation, a few minutes, and an organizational chart.

As a form of profit sharing or retirement investment was needed in the initial stages to make such an enterprise self-sustaining and profitable for ACGS programs, the ESI first housed and then marketed German-related books and textbooks. After a year or so of the experiment, the Council decided to establish ESI on a permanent basis with ownership vested in ACGS. One of the functions of ESI was to serve as a travel agent arranging transportation for ACGS, NCSA, and AATG programs. Since all three non-profit entities benefited from the ESI travel agency services, audio-visual loan services, etc., the question was whether the ESI stock option plan needed to be independently owned in order for NCSA, AATG, and ACGS to enter a service agreement with ESI. Council determined the ESI did need to be an independent entity, thus the ESI “divorced” itself from cooperation with the three entities in December 1974. In June 1975, ESI stock distribution was proposed for purchasers.

Series 4. Reference, 1872-1976, n.d. (Boxes 166-176, 218, FF #9)

The material in this series, which is large, was clearly used as reference and background information for publications and exhibits. It is complemented by a large number of photographs. The archival materials are almost all printed materials and illustrations – including a fair amount of Fraktur – and date from the 1700s to 1976.

Series 5. Scrapbooks, 1930-1968 (Boxes 219-225)

The material here is a very nice collection of scrapbooks, which have been arranged chronologically from 1930 to 1968. There is a mix of letters, newspaper clippings, and photographs, which have been kept with the scrapbooks.

Series 6. Audio-Visual, 1969-1975, n.d. (Boxes 177-178)

This series contains the collection of audio-visual materials. The type of recorded materials varies. The two audio cassettes deal with the association's works, such as the NCSA PAD Program, and a lecture "Why Study German?" produced by the NCSA/AATG Service Center. Others illuminate historical and biographical matter, for instance, "The American People: The Europeans," "The Cat Spring Germans," "The Easter Fires of Fredericksburg," and a filmstrip "Einstein." There are two audio tapes in German. The majority of the audio and video material is undated.

Series 7. Photographs, negatives, and slides, 1834-1980, n.d. (Boxes 179-191, FF #8-9).

A. Photographs and negatives, 1834-1980, n.d.

Group 1. Institutional cooperative materials, 1834-1978, n.d.

Group 2. Other organizations, 1847-1973, n.d.

Group 3. Historical and biographical, 1872-1980, n.d.

This series includes 3,913 mostly black and white photographs, 108 negatives, 296 slides and glass negatives, and 13 lantern slides, arranged in three subseries. This series is arranged in a mode similar to the records. Thus, focusing on the National Carl Schurz and related organizations materials, first are placed images of the Old Custom House building and offices of 420 Chestnut Street, and also the building, offices, and exhibits of 339 Walnut Street, Philadelphia. Furthermore, there are photographs illustrating events, visits, and activities of Oberlaender Trust, such as a tour of Germany; the CSMF inauguration in 1933, annual celebrations in 1933 and 1934, and exhibitions of publication samples; the AATG and NCSA program applicants; and the NFSG National Conventions of 1965-1975. The vast majority of the photos are concentrated on the Bicentennial catalog and publications, mostly American-German Review, showing many activities and interests the organizations performed.

The bulk of these are photos reproduced from the collections of the Library of Congress, the Bancroft Library of the University of California, the California Historical Society, the Concordia Historical Institute, the International Museum of Photography, the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, and Historic Bethlehem, Inc. Materials depict a range of art and culture, and abound in images of antiques, architecture, sculpture, fine arts, paintings, cinema, theater, music, dance, etc. Moreover, other photographs relate to agriculture, business, trade, industry, and science. Both the bicentennial catalog and publication materials include images of cities and people, many well known. In addition, there are photographs showing exhibits, such as "Span 200", "Kids and Cars," NCSA art exhibits, and others.

A very small second grouping of this subseries includes photographs of other organizations, in particular the German Society of Pennsylvania, the Rohm & Haas Company, the United States Information Center, the New York Museum of Science and Industry, and the Austrian Institute, concerning their exhibits and buildings. The third and final group of this subseries is composed of historical and biographical photos, which largely illustrate Carl Schurz's life and activities, and the Goethe bicentennial. There are photographs of the Historical Ephrata Cloister, including Peter Miller's grave and the building in which he claimed to have translated the United States Declaration of Independence. An image of the Declaration of Independence in German also resides among these historical photographs.

Many photographs have brief captions. Some photos remain with manuscripts, in particular with CSMF exhibits (25:1-2), NCSA program applications and correspondence, and also with the scrapbooks.

B. Slides, 1960-1976, n.d.

In addition, there are slides and glass slides in Series 7B. On a large scale they repeat the photographs' contents, representing again the Old Custom House building and offices, bicentennial catalog materials, the NCSA annual celebrations, the NFSG National Conventions, and also the history of Schurz's life. Negatives in Series 7C are unidentified but were probably used for Rundschau.

Series 8. Artifacts, 1895-1897, 1907-1956, n.d. (Boxes 192-193)

A few artifacts accompanied this collection. They include decorations, such as a CSMF medallion awarded to the Goethe bicentennial essay contest winner; the CSMF award medal for merit on the occasion of the 250th anniversary of Benjamin Franklin; the Heinrich von Stephan medal given to CSMF from Philadelphia; the Nordhoff-Jung decoration medal of honorary citizenship given to the Foundation in 1944; the medal for distinguished achievement in cultural relations between the United States and German speaking people; Heinrich Heine and Ferdinand Thun medals; and a ribbon presented in 1871 to Philadelphia by Rev. G. H. Bechfold. Other artifacts include a German flag, a coin commemorating the bicentennial of the arrival of Henry Melchior Muhlenberg in America, presented to CSMF by the Rev. Benze Leonicus Institute; the Pennsylvania German Christmas greeting gift to the Foundation from Gerhard Friedrich in 1942; and the Steuben Society of America medallion of 1919-1929. In addition, there are Gustav Oberlaender and Carl Schurz plaques.

Separation report

Approximately 18 feet of hand-written vouchers, invoices and cancelled checks were de-accessioned as information from these materials is included in the many ledgers and other financial documents remaining in the collection. In addition, a box of old unidentified equipment was de-accessioned. Finally, seven old computer tapes were also removed.

The microfilms of American-German Review from 1956-1970, and Rundschau American-German Review, from 1971-1976, these publications themselves from 1952 to 1978, and the NFSG Club News — the Rundschau supplement from 1972 to 1975 have been removed from the collection and placed in the HSP Library. For the microfilm and publications lists see Appendices 1 and 2 following this guide.

Administrative Information

Restrictions

Records containing detailed information regarding payroll and personnel files are restricted until 2023 to 2027, and 2051. These materials are in Series 1B, Group 1. Also in Series 1B, Group 1 are personnel records concerning terminated employees that are restricted until 2021-2022.

Acquisition information

The collection was donated in 1989 to the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies by Alice Finckh, and as a gift from her estate in 2000.

Accession numbers: M89-32, M89-35, and M00-02.

This project was made possible with a generous grant from the Phoebe W. Haas Fund.

Alternative format

Series 2 has been microfilmed (film 1374).
