Collection 227A

Abstract

Born in Philadelphia to William Howard Gardiner (1851-1906) and Helena Lawrence Baird (1852-1906), Edward Carey Gardiner (1878-1945) worked most of his life in the family's publishing house that descended from the one Mathew Carey founded in Philadelphia in 1785. When he retired from publishing, Edward briefly joined the army, traveled across the U.S. and abroad, and served on various boards of local social and cultural institutions.

The Edward Carey Gardiner collection consists of papers of the Baird, Carey, Gardiner, Lea, and Penington families, many of which were prominent in political, economic, and cultural affairs in Philadelphia. The collection is rich in personal and business correspondence, family papers and genealogical notes, and material printed by the Carey family publishing house. There are also land, legal, and financial papers; estate papers; photographs; passports; speeches and writings; and a few artifacts.

Background note

Edward Carey Gardiner¹ was born in Philadelphia, November 14, 1878, to William Howard Gardiner (1851-1906), a military historian, and Helena Lawrence Baird (1852-1906), the only child of Henry Carey Baird (1825-1912), a noted Philadelphia publisher. Edward had two older brothers: William Howard (1875-1952) and John Penington (1876-1940). William became a publicist and a political and naval affairs consultant. John, who eventually moved to Boston, worked most of his life as businessman. During the Spanish-American War of 1898, John served with Theodore Roosevelt in the 1st U.S. Volunteer Calvary (the "Roosevelt Rough Riders").

Even though Edward had been educated overseas with tutors and in schools in Italy, Switzerland, and France, he lived most of his life in Philadelphia, as a bachelor and, like many of his ancestors, as a publisher. He joined his grandfather's publishing firm of Henry C. Baird & Co. in 1904. In 1917, shortly after the United States declared war on

Germany, Edward decided to retire from publishing and enter the military. He served at Quantico, Virginia, joined the United States Marine Corps, and was honorably discharged in 1919.

After his military stint, Edward pursued more civic and leisure opportunities, including travel. In 1921, he became a board member (and later assistant board secretary) of Glen Mills School, a private school in Glen Mills, Pennsylvania, for adolescent male delinquents. A few years later, in 1926, he joined the Historical Society of Pennsylvania (HSP) and was elected to its Auditor's office. He also served on HSP's many committees, and, at the time of his death, was chairman of the Membership and Activities Committee. Edward also joined several other societies, including the Society of Colonial Wars in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Colonial Society of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania Society of the War of 1812, and Pennsylvania Sons of the Revolution. His more leisure-related memberships included the Rittenhouse Club and the Philadelphia Cricket Club. During the 1930s, Edward traveled extensively. Between 1931 and 1937, he joined his cousin Arthur Henry Lea (1859-1938) on excursions to South America, the Mediterranean, Panama, Canada, China, Mexico, Hawaii, France, Italy, the Caribbean, and the Middle East. They also traveled to California and throughout the southeastern United States.

Edward, who died in 1945, enjoyed a remarkable ancestry. Not only was he one of Mathew Carey's descendants, but his family line also includes other famous Philadelphia families, most notably, the Peningtons, Bairds, Leas, and, to a lesser extent, the Shoemakers, Mifflins, Gibsons, and Febigers.

Edward's great-great grandfather was publisher and bookseller Mathew Carey (1760-1839). Mathew was born in Dublin, Ireland, and arrived in America in 1784 with nine years of experience as a printer and publisher under his belt. When the Marquis de Lafayette, who had met Mathew a few years earlier in Paris, learned of his arrival in America, he sent Mathew a check for $400 with which to establish his own business. Naturally, Mathew chose publishing and bookselling. Among his early Philadelphia publications were the Pennsylvania Evening Herald, the Columbian Magazine, and the American Museum, none of which were very successful. With the outbreak of yellow fever in Philadelphia in 1793, Mathew took to opportunity to publish his own work entitled The history of the yellow fever of 1793, which marked the beginning of his venture into medical publishing. During the course of his career, Mathew published over forty medical works; however, he also published broadsides, novels, atlases, bibles, and political titles, including some of his own writings such as Vindiciae Hibernicae (1819), New Olive Branch (1820), and Essays of Political Economy (1822). Mathew devoted his life to political economics after he left the publishing business in the early 1820s.

Accounts differ as to when Henry Charles Carey (1793-1879), Mathew's first son, joined his father's publishing house, but by 1817, the firm became known as M. Carey & Son. Henry managed the company after Mathew retired and remained at its head until the early 1830s. In the mid-1830s, Henry co-founded the Franklin Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, and soon after, retired from business altogether. Having been deeply influenced by his father's politics, Henry turned towards political economics and began publishing his views on American economy and industry. Beginning in the 1840s, Henry became a strong advocate of protectionism and a leading critic of free trade principles. His works on economics include Past, Present and Future (1848), Harmony of Interests, Agricultural, Manufacturing and Commercial (1851), and the multi-volume Principles of Social Science (1858-59). His ideas influenced the Republican Party's program for national economic development, and he has been called one of the most important American economic thinkers of the nineteenth century. Due to his writings, Henry became a very recognizable figure in Philadelphia's upper echelons, and he often kept company with notable figures (and supporters) such as editor of the North American Review, Morton McMichael, iron and steel magnate Joseph P. Wharton, and financial analyst Stephen Colwell. Henry also worked briefly for President Abraham Lincoln as his chief economic advisor.

When Henry's younger brother, Edward Lawrence Carey (1805-1845), joined the family's publishing house in 1827, which was then run by Henry C. Carey and Isaac Lea, it was renamed Carey, Lea & Carey. A few years later, Edward left the firm and joined with Abraham Hart, a local book seller, to form another publishing house, Carey & Hart, which found success in poetry and novels. In the late 1830s, Edward became very ill and temporarily moved to England in the hopes it would benefit his health. However, upon his return to the states he became housebound and died at the age of forty. Abraham Hart continued his business with the help of Edward's nephew, Henry Carey Baird.

Henry Carey Baird (1825-1912) was the son of Thomas J. Baird (1794-1842), an officer of the War of 1812, and Eliza Catherine Carey (1795-1881), the second daughter of Mathew Carey. At the age of twenty, he and Abraham Hart formed the publishing firm Hart & Baird. Only four years later, in 1849, Henry parted from the business to form the publishing firm of Henry C. Baird & Co, which published primarily technical, industrial, and economic works. Henry also developed a passion for economics, having been deeply influenced by his uncle's (Henry C. Carey) and great-uncle's (Mathew Carey) writings. Although he authored a few articles and lectured on economic protection and industry, he focused on publishing others' works on political economy and industry.

Scope & content

The Edward Carey Gardiner collection consists of papers of the Baird, Carey, Gardiner, Lea, and Penington families, many of which were prominent in political, economic, and cultural affairs in Philadelphia. The collection is rich in personal and business correspondence, family papers and genealogical notes, and material printed by the Carey family publishing house. There are also land, legal, and financial papers; estate papers; photographs; passports; speeches and writings; and a few artifacts. The collection spans from 1673 to 1949, with the bulk dating from 1787 to 1885. For a brief genealogical report on the Carey family, please see Appendix 1 on pages 28-29 of this guide.

The collection is arranged into six series, five of which represent specific family lines, with Series 1 (Baird section) and Series 5 (Carey section) being divided further into subseries based on specific family members. The original order of the papers has been maintained within each series. Correspondence is in alphabetical order and the remaining papers are in rough chronological order. Most volumes that were housed in boxes have been removed, tabbed, and numbered chronologically in the order in which they were found; however some small volumes remain foldered. Originally, there were two miscellaneous sections within the collection; these have been combined into Series 6.

Series 1 (Baird section) contains the papers of Henry Carey Baird and his father Thomas J. Baird. Henry's papers are contained in five boxes and six volumes and consist primarily of incoming correspondence, family history material, and miscellaneous land and legal documents. Four volumes are diaries of his 1847 tour through England and Europe. There is also a copy of his Narrative of Rear Admiral Goldsborough, U.S. Navy, and several of his lectures and published articles. The papers of Thomas J. Baird comprise a very small subseries. There are six volumes of his military papers, compiled by his son; and four folders that contain correspondence, certificates, land papers of his wife Eliza C. Baird, and notes and speeches.

Series 2 (Gardiner section) is a small series of fifteen folders, most of which contain genealogical notes on the Gardiner family of New England. However, there are also the papers of William Howard Gardiner (1875-1952), which consist of correspondence, family history material, and published articles. There are also two folders of material from Edward Carey Gardiner, including his correspondence, writings, and a few images of family members.

Series 3 (Lea section), another small series at only eight folders, is chiefly comprised of family history material, correspondence, obituaries, and miscellaneous writings and publications. There are also several of Arthur Henry Lea's (1859-1938) travel journals from 1931 to 1937 that document his trips to Europe and China, as accompanied by his cousin Edward Carey Gardiner.

Series 4 (Penington section) contains the papers of the Penington family, which became interrelated with the Careys when Henry Carey Baird married Elizabeth Davis Penington (1827-1901). There are seven volumes and about three boxes of papers that contain the mixed papers of several ancestors: Isaac Penington (1616-1697), a distinguished Quaker and author; Edward Penington (1667-1711), an author who accompanied William Penn to Pennsylvania in 1698 and later became surveyor general of the province; Isaac Penington (1700-1742), one of the founders of the Library Company of Philadelphia; Edward Penington (1726-1796), a Quaker, merchant, and member of the Provincial Council; Edward Penington (1766-1834), a sugar refiner and merchant; John Penington (1768-1793), a physician; John Penington (1799-1867), an author and a leading bookseller in Philadelphia; and Henry Penington (1807-1858), a lawyer and author. Researchers should note that, within these papers, few distinctions are made between ancestors of the same name.

Series 5 (Carey section) includes papers from three prominent family members, Edward L. Carey (1800-1845), Henry C. Carey (1793-1879), and Mathew Carey (1760-1839), each of whom has his own subseries. Edward L. Carey's papers make up the first and smallest subseries, at three volumes and three folders. Among the items are his personal papers, diaries of his stay in England in 1839, and a remarkable image entitled Panoramic View

Round the Regent's Park. The second subseries, at eleven boxes, contains a wide assortment of papers from noted nineteenth century economist Henry C. Carey. There is correspondence, legal and financial material, testimonials, biographical notes, photographs, a copy of Henry's will, and two of his unpublished manuscripts, one on Greece, and the other on economics. The next subseries contains Mathew Carey's papers, which are housed in seven boxes and four volumes. His correspondence is arranged both alphabetically and numerically by volume. There are also two of his diaries from 1791 to 1821 and 1810 to 1819, book orders, legal papers, assorted printed material and articles, and biographical notes and writings. The final subseries consists of miscellaneous papers relating to the Carey family and their business ventures. It includes personal correspondence, mixed business correspondence, a variety of pamphlets on subjects ranging from banking to tariffs, and papers concerning collieries in Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, on land known as the St. Clair Tract.

Series 6 (Miscellaneous section) completes the collection at twelve boxes. It is comprised of an assortment of letters and documents on domestic, legal, political, commercial affairs. There are several boxes of alphabetically arranged, third-party letters, financial material, and legal papers. There are also papers of the estates of Martha Powell Bowen, Thomas Coats (or Coates), and the Maybin family; as well as a sizeable group of letters and documents culled for their autographs. Additionally, this series contains a small collection of papers on Fitz-John Porter relating to his court martial and military charges brought against him during the Civil War. There are also several miscellaneous artifacts, such as Civil war tokens, two steel plate engravings, and pins from the 1936 presidential campaign of Alfred Landon and Frank Knox.

Series descriptions

Series 1. Baird section, 1813-ca. 1938 (Boxes 1-6,49, Vols. 1-15)

a. Henry Carey Baird, 1835-ca. 1938.

Henry was an author, a political writer, and a publisher, who became one of America's foremost economists. The first four boxes of his material consist of incoming business correspondence, the bulk of which dates from the 1850s, around the time he split from Abraham Hart to form his own publishing business. There are several boxes of alphabetically arranged letters that contain requests for books, authors seeking advice on how to get works published, and thank you letters from people to whom Henry sent specific books. There are also requests for and acknowledgements of payments, scattered invoices, and a few printed notices from newly opened book stores. There are few personal materials, save for occasional meeting notices, invitations, and cordial notes.

The rest of the series is quite varied, and includes a folder of Henry's outgoing correspondence, papers of his wife, Elizabeth David (Penington) Baird, family history material, and some of Henry's writings. In Box 5 Folder 7 is a copy of Henry's article entitled "Contribution to Trade History," which he wrote in memory of his uncle Henry C. Carey. Henry also wrote a memoir of Colonel Alexander Biddle that is contained in Box 5 Folder 8; in the next folder are grateful letters from the Biddle family and others regarding the memoir. There is also a bound, handwritten copy of a Narrative of Rear Admiral Goldsborough, U. S. Nary, which Henry wrote in 1862. A 1933 reprint of this work is available in Box 5 Folder 14. Other volumes in this series include a series of handwritten journals in which Henry documented his 1847 tour of England, Scotland, Belgium, France, and Germany; a scrapbook of articles and printed works (many of which were authored by Henry or various members of the Carey family) entitled "Miscellanies;" and Henry's memo book (similar to a notebook) of 1885.

For additional Henry Carey Baird items, please see Series 5d (Carey section: Miscellaneous), which contains his credit books and records books from Henry C. Baird & Co.

b. Thomas J. Baird, 1813-1869.

Thomas J. Baird was born in Dublin, Ireland, and came to the United States in the early 1800s. He attended West Point Military Academy and served during the War of 1812. This small series contains papers that pertain to his military career, as well as personal documents. Thomas's son, Henry Carey Baird, compiled his military papers in six bound volumes dating from 1813 to 1828. The material ranges from original incoming and copies of outgoing letters to Thomas's commission to first lieutenant to invoices for supplies and requisition records. Box 6 contains a few folders of loose material such as notes, incoming correspondence, and land papers and deeds of his wife Eliza C. (Carey) Baird. Additional volumes in this series include a compilation of Thomas's letters from 1817 to 1842, and his diary and receipt book.

Series 2. Gardiner section, 1874-1949 (Boxes 6-7)

This series contains mostly papers that concern the history of the Gardiner family. There is William Howard Gardiner's (1875-1952) compilation of the pedigrees of himself and his brothers, Edward Carey and John Penington. There is also correspondence (Box 6 Folders 7-8) between William and other Gardiners as he tried to establish connections with then-unknown relatives. Additional information on the Gardiner and related families includes obituaries, coats of arms, genealogical charts, and other miscellaneous notes.

In terms of personal papers, this series contains several articles on naval affairs by William Howard Gardiner as president of the Navy League of the United States. There is also a folder of William's materials on the flag of the Newport Military Company. From other family members, there is a photocopy of John Gardiner's (1737-1793) citizenship certificate from 1784, some of Edward Carey Gardiner's personal papers and letters, and Edward's manuscript on Company B, Wayne Infantry. There are also folder of images of family members and silver designs.

Series 3. Lea section, 1824-1939 (Boxes 7-8)

The Leas and Careys became united in 1821 when Isaac Lea (1792-1886) married Frances Anne Carey (1799-1874), fourth daughter of Mathew Carey. Isaac had a prolific scientific career, published several papers in biology and geology, and was eventually elected president of Philadelphia's Academy of Natural Sciences.

Although this is a small series, it contains an array of material. There are folders each of genealogical notes, correspondence, certificates, and miscellaneous materials. Also, in Box 7 Folder 13, is a booklet containing a letter, plate, and certificate from the American Field Service in France to Arthur Henry Lea (1859-1938) and his wife as thanks for their donation of an ambulance. The first two folders in Box 8 contain several travel diaries written by Arthur H. Lea. Between 1931 and 1937, he and his cousin Edward Carey Gardiner traveled to various destinations in North America, South America, Asia, and North Africa. Since each trip generally lasted several weeks, Arthur's diaries are quite extensive as he wrote almost daily about their sightseeing adventures.

Series 4. Penington section, 1643-1931 (Boxes 8-10, Vols. 16-22)

This series contains mixed family papers from and genealogical material on the Penington family. Researchers should note that, within this series, few distinctions are made between family members with the same name. For example, papers filed under "Edward Penington" could include items from Edward Penington (1667-1711), an author who accompanied William Penn to Pennsylvania in 1698 and later became surveyor general of the province; Edward Penington (1726-1796), a Quaker, merchant, and member of the Provincial Council; or Edward Penington (1766-1834), a sugar refiner and merchant. Box 8 contains such papers as Edward's (1667-1711) appointment of Phineas Pemberton to deputy surveyor in 1700, a journal written by Edward (1726-1796) about his journey from Philadelphia to London in the early 1750s, and a folder of correspondence kept by Sarah Penington Nesbitt Buchanan. Additionally, there are several pictures of and articles on the demolition of the Pennington mansion, which was located on Race Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets; a copy of Edward's (1726-1796) will; and several folders of incoming and outgoing correspondence.

Box 9 contains the papers of Henry Penington (1807-1858), a lawyer and author. There are several bound items as well as five folders of correspondence and business papers. Books that remain in Box 9 include a ground rents book, an account book, an address/memo book, a bank book, and a catalog of Henry's private library that eventually went up for auction. His legal journal from 1829 (Volume 17) contains a glossary of various legal terms; his legal notebook (Volume 18) contains brief notes from cases which involved many notable Philadelphia families, in particular, the Coat(e)s family, of which Henry may have been the family's attorney.

The final box in the series contains an assortment of family papers, including papers filed under "Isaac Penington" (Isaac Penington, 1700-1742, or Isaac Penington, 1756-1803) and "John Penington" (John Penington 1768-1793, or John Penington, 1799-1867). There are also a few personal writings, such as John Penington's journal of his residence in Scotland, France, and England from 1790 to 1791 (Volume 21); Mary Penington's published 1848 work entitled A Brief Account of my Exercises from Childhood; and a unknown transcription of Aesop's fables. Additionally, Box 10 contains Elizabeth D. Penington's sketch book, two folders of genealogical material, and printed articles and photographs. Notably, Volume 22 is John Penington's (1799-1867) personal journal from 1860 to 1867. Apparently, it was one in a series of journals, as he begins the first entry, dated December 2nd, "How much paper shall I now take for this new journal?" In his monthly entries, he recollects past and current events and time spent with family and friends. He often cites Mulberry Hill, the city in New Jersey in which he was born, and recalls his mother and father, both deceased. Between 1861 and 1865, he frequently touches upon political and economic topics and discusses his feelings towards Lincoln's administration and the secessionists. Of Lincoln's assassination he wrote, "April 16 (Sunday afternoon) Now that the first shock has been felt [and] I [came?] to regard coolly the assassination of Lincoln[,] I cannot but consider it a blessing." He goes on to explain his notion that if Lincoln had continued as president, his "kindly nature" would have been exploited by strong-willed and "fiendish" southern rebels. The last journal entry is dated March 4, 1867, fourteen days before John's death.

Series 5. Carey section, 1779-1944 (Boxes 11-31, 50-51, Vols. 23-34) a. Edward L. Carey, 1822-1944.

Edward Lawrence Carey (1805-1845) was the third son and sixth child of Mathew Carey and Mary Flahavan. He worked in the family's publishing house, but later formed his own publishing firm with Abraham Hart. Edward's papers, housed in three folders and three volumes, consist of mixed correspondence and printed material, a picture booklet entitled Panoramic View Round the Regent's Park, a journal of his 1822 trip to London, a catalogue of his collection of paintings and sculptures, and an account book of his and Mathew Carey's estates. In Box 11 Folder 3, there are also two diaries of his stay in London in 1839. According to his obituary, Edward became very ill in the late 1830s and decided to move to England in the hopes that it would benefit his health. Shortly after his return, however, he became housebound. His diary entries, though sometimes hard to read due to his hadnwriting, contain notes on places he visited in Europe, particularly art museums and national monuments.

b. Henry C. Carey, 1825-1936.

Henry Charles Carey (1793-1879) became a preeminent nineteenth century economist. Spanning 10 boxes, Henry's papers consist mostly of alphabetically arranged incoming correspondence that is business oriented and concerns money paid and owed for books. There are, however, scattered personal letters from clients and family members. There are also letters from people who sought economic advice or wanted to discuss their own thoughts on the state of the economy. There are also several larger groups of letters from single correspondents such as lawyer E. W. McGinnes, fellow economist Erasmus Peshine Smith, and publisher Abraham Hart. Additionally, Box 9 contains two folders of Henry's outgoing correspondence.

Besides correspondence, this series also contains legal and financial papers, copies of Henry's will, printed material, certificates, biographical notes, miscellaneous ephemera, and photographs. In Box 21 are two of Henry's unpublished manuscripts, one on Greece, the other on economics. In this same box is a folder of material pertaining to "Carey's Vespers." These gatherings to discuss current events were held in Henry's home during the latter part of the 1800s and involved family, friends, and occasional guests such as General Ulysses S. Grant, General Robert Patterson, Congressman James G. Blaine, and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson.

c. Mathew Carey, 1784-1937.

Dublin-born Mathew Carey (1760-1839), a printer and publisher, arrived in Philadelphia in 1784. The publishing firm (M. Carey & Co.) he established in 1785 became one of the oldest surviving publishing houses in Philadelphia (Lea & Febiger). The bulk of Mathew Carey's papers consist of incoming correspondence, which is arranged both alphabetically and by volume number in just over six boxes. Many of his letters are from readers wishing to express their thoughts in agreement with his writings. However, there are also scattered personal letters, invitations, business letters, and letters concerning book sales. While there is a separate folder of book orders, there also are some informal requests for published material among the incoming correspondence.

At the end of the incoming correspondence, there are five folders of outgoing correspondence, which include a mix of handwritten and printed letters, the latter of which are mostly book announcements or solicitations. His handwritten letters are chiefly business oriented and often concern publishing bibles. (Mathew's firm, in 1790, published the first Douay-Rheims bible in America.) Box 27 Folder 6 contains the 1817 partnership agreement between Mathew and his son, Henry Charles Carey. Several letters are accompanied by typed transcriptions.

Box 27 also contains a folder of book orders and related correspondence. On each form is indicated the ship on which the books would travel, the ship master, the order's destination, and an inventory. The majority of orders in this folder were shipped to C[harles] R. and G. Webster of Albany, New York. There are also several orders for Daniel Steele, also of Albany. Additionally, there are a few receipts from Mathew Carey's shop and a published sketch on Mathew Carey, Henry Charles Carey, and Henry Charles Lea.

Other material in this series includes Mathew's personal documents, such as a draft of his will, his oath of allegiance to the United States, and miscellaneous legal papers and printed material, including an issue of the Pennsylvania Packet and General Advertiser from June 10, 1784, which contains a report on Mathew's arrest in Dublin just a few months before he immigrated to America. Most of the material at the end of this series dates from after Mathew's death in 1839. There is a folder in Box 27 of promissory notes from Lea & Blanchard (the family's publishing firm headed by Isaac Lea and William A. Blanchard) concerning loans from Mathew. Box 28 contains obituaries, articles on his life and work, and letters to the Carey family in regards to Mathew's death. There are also a few accounts and recollections of his life, such as a sketch written by Isaac Lea and an undated memorial written by David H. Mason.

Rounding out this series are four volumes: two of Mathew's diaries dated 1791-1821 and 1810-1819, and two copies of transcribed and typed selections from the letters of Mrs. Mathew Carey (Mary Flahavan, 1770-1829).

d. Miscellaneous, 1779-1918.

This subseries contains miscellaneous family, business, and legal papers from members of the Carey family. There are also several folders of pamphlets printed by, and some authored by, Mathew Carey; papers concerning coal lands known as the St. Clair Tract; and miscellaneous volumes that belonged to Henry Carey Baird.

At the beginning of this series are folders of miscellaneous family correspondence and genealogical material. There are typed transcriptions of extracts from Elizabeth Sheridan Carey's letters from 1879 to 1882. Elizabeth was a poet who spent most of her life in France and daughter of art expert William Paulet Carey (1768-1839), one of Mathew's brothers. Other folders include a genealogical chart of the Carey family from 1532 to 1723 and portraits of family ancestors. In a separate box is a glass negative and print of one of Mathew's daughters, Susan Matilda Carey (1806-1844).

Following the family material is mixed miscellaneous business correspondence of Carey & Lea; Carey, Lea & Carey; Carey, Lea & Blanchard; and Lea & Blanchard. There are separate folders of letters of Carey & Lea, as well as Carey & Hart, the firm formed by Edward L. Carey and Abraham Hart in 1829. Additionally, there are three folders of copyright papers, dating mostly from the 1830s to the 1850s, for books published by Carey & Hart and Henry C. Baird & Co.

In Boxes 29 and 30, there are nine folders of various pamphlets, most of which were published or authored by Mathew Carey between 1811 and 1839. They are arranged alphabetically according to subjects as wide ranging as banking, charitable institutions, the Greeks, internal improvements, and tariffs. A complete inventory is available in Appendix 2 on pages 30-33 of this guide.

Papers of the anthracite coal and iron ore lands know as the St. Clair Tract are also in this series. Some of this land came into possession of Henry C. Carey, Edward L. Carey, Isaac Lea, and Abraham Hart in 1835. Together, they became known as the "Carey Group" and they eventually purchased the remaining lands that made up the St. Clair Tract and other surrounding coal fields. When Edward L. Carey died in 1844, the land passed to his sister-in-law, Eliza Carey Baird, as stipulated in his will. There are four folders of St. Clair Tract papers, and most are legal documents, such as indentures, deeds, and deed polls, which show how the land was cultivated and changed hands over several decades. There are also a few scattered letters and financial papers, as well as two hand-drawn plans of portions of the land and its collieries.

At the end of this series are several credit books in Box 31 that belonged to Henry Carey Baird. [Please note that the bulk of Henry Carey Baird's papers are contained in Series 1a (Baird section: Henry Carey Baird).] There are also five volumes (Volumes 30-34) in which are recorded lists of books published by Carey & Hart, Hart & Baird, and Henry C. Baird & Co. between 1830 and 1886. The numerous entries provide cost breakdowns on how much money they spent to publish each order of books. Although each entry is unique according a book's specific needs, general line items include reams of papers, composition, presswork, binding, and copyright.

Series 6. Miscellaneous section, 1673-1939 (Boxes 32-48, Vols. 35-38)

In this series of twelve boxes are third party letters and papers, miscellaneous record books, estate papers, and an autograph collection. There are also two typed, unbound copies of Edward Carey Gardiner's "Changes in the names of street in the city of Philadelphia from 1897 to 1930." Additionally, there are land and legal papers pertaining to the property at 810 Walnut Street, once owned by members of the Birch family, and printed material and miscellaneous papers on the court martial of General Fitz-John Porter. This series also contains a few artifacts, such as Civil War tokens, pins from the 1936 presidential campaign of Alfred Landon, a Union League ribbon dating from the Civil War period, and two steel plate engravings.

The first several boxes contain alphabetically arranged third party correspondence and mixed papers (receipts, bills, legal notes, booklets, images), the earliest of which date from several decades before Mathew Carey arrived in America in 1784. Such material includes bills dated 1706 to 1710 to Elisha Lawrence, notes on a 1738 case between Robert Bolton and John Trapnall, and a record of payments owed to Edward Penington of London in 1766 and 1767. Some of these papers relate directly to events which involved family members and ancestors, while other documents, such as the legal notes, may have been written or collected by those family members in the legal profession. Among these papers are several volumes, which have been either foldered in the order in which they were found or separated and given a distinct number. For example, Box 33 Folder 3 contains a receipt book of Francis Cassidy; Volume 36 is a notebook of handwritten entries by John

Lawrence which he entitles "Moral Philosophy;" and Volume 37 is an account book of D. Rubicam for the "Club Number One."

Making up the estate papers are those of Martha Powel Bowen, Thomas Coats (or Coates), and the Maybin family. The most extensive group is that of Martha Powel Bowen at six folders and one volume. There is correspondence from John Brown, who managed the estate's account and held Bowen's power of attorney. Additionally, there are two folders of business, financial, and legal papers, concerning the family estate, Bowen Hall, in Kingston, Jamaica.

The papers of the Thomas Coats and John Maybin estate are less extensive at three folders each. The Thomas Coats estate papers include a mixture of correspondence, bills and receipts, accounts, deeds, indentures, and miscellaneous notes. Some of the letters are from Henry Penington, who was apparently the estate's or the family's attorney. The Maybin estate papers are similar to the Coats papers and consist of settlement papers, accounts, correspondence, financial material, and miscellaneous notes. Henry Penington's name also appears among these papers, and he may have legally represented this family as well.

At the end of this series are autographs collected by Edward Carey Gardiner. One folder contains an envelope of cut signatures, while the remaining letters are intact. There are three groups of autographs: those under the heading "Foreigners," those under the heading "Literary and scientific men," and miscellaneous items that have been arranged alphabetically by signer. Please see Appendix 3 on pages 34-43 for an inventory of the miscellaneous autographs.
